Located in the Marina of Puerto Vallarta in Mexico, the House takes advantage of a beautiful view on the Pacific bay of Vallarta.

The house was conceived to allow family and guests to enjoy the peaceful surroundings. It has all the amenities allowing a great experience during a journey in Vallarta: a fitness center, a home theater, 2 Jacuzzis, a terrace with a swimming pool, a fire pit, 8 bedrooms, and so on. Its main focus was to create multifunctional spaces that could open to the exterior. Every room has floor to ceiling windows that open up to private terraces; Vallarta's unique climate permitted us to design these kind of areas. The main attraction is the living and dining room, which is surrounded by curtain glass walls that open and unify with the pool and terrace area, creating a strong experience of bringing the outside in the heart of the house.

The use of natural stones and concrete walls create fresh spaces that help during hot seasons. It was also important to use materials that brought warmth to each area, this was achieved by creating a one of a kind finish that has the appearance of wood but is made out of concrete panels. This finish was used mainly on the façade, but is also seen in some of the important indoor spaces.

The objective of installing green walls and rooftops was to insulate the house from heat, reducing the use of air conditioning, they also help integrate the house with its landscape. Because the house is located below a multistory residential building, it was important to not interfere with their ocean views, and give the rooftop a nice finish.
